Current Impending Danger Threats	Changes for June 2022 eWiSACWIS Release

1. No adult in the home will perform parental duties and responsibilities.

This refers only to adults (not children) in a caregiving role. Duties and responsibilities related to the provision of food, clothing, shelter, and supervision are considered at a basic level.

This threat is illustrated by the following examples.

- Parent's/caregiver's disability (intellectual/cognitive, physical, sensory, behavior, communication) or incapacitation makes the person unable to provide basic care for the child.
- Parent/caregiver is or has been absent from the home for lengthy periods of time and no other adults are available to care for the child without CPS coordination.
- Parent/caregiver has abandoned the child.
- Parent/caregiver arranged care by an adult, but their whereabouts are unknown, or they have not returned according to plan, and the current caregiver is asking for relief.
- Parent/caregiver does not respond to or ignores a child's basic needs.
- Parent/caregiver allows the child to wander in and out of the home or through the neighborhood without the necessary supervision.
- Parent/caregiver ignores or does not provide necessary, protective supervision and basic care appropriate to the age, capacity, and/or developmental ability of the child.
- Parent/caregiver is unavailable to provide necessary protective supervision and basic care because of physical illness or incapacity.
- Parent/caregiver is or will be incarcerated thereby leaving the child without a responsible adult to provide care.
- Parent/caregiver allows other adults to improperly influence (drugs, alcohol, abusive behavior) the child.
- Child has been left with someone who does not know the parent/caregiver.

No adult in the home will perform parental duties and responsibilities in line with the child's individual developmental needs.

This refers only to adults (not children) in a caregiving role. Duties and responsibilities related to the provision of food, clothing, shelter, and supervision are considered at a basic level.

Child welfare professionals shall consider whether short-term or limited-time education or support to the parent/caregiver would mitigate the threat or if further intervention is needed.

This threat is illustrated by the following examples.

- The parent/caregiver is unable to provide basic care for the child due to their own disability (intellectual/cognitive, physical, sensory, behavior, communication). ~~Parent's/caregiver's disability (intellectual/cognitive, physical, sensory, behavior, communication) or incapacitation makes the person unable to provide basic care for the child.~~

- Parent/caregiver has abandoned the child.
- Parent/caregiver arranged care by an adult, but their whereabouts are unknown, or they have not returned according to plan, and the current caregiver is asking for relief.
- Parent/caregiver does not respond to or ignores a child's basic needs.
- ~~• Parent/caregiver allows the child to wander in and out of the home or through the neighborhood without the necessary supervision.~~
- Parent/caregiver ignores or does not provide necessary, protective supervision and basic care appropriate to the age, capacity, and/or developmental ability needs of the child.
- Parent/caregiver is unavailable to provide necessary protective supervision and basic care because of physical illness or incapacity.
- Parent/caregiver is or will be incarcerated thereby leaving the child without a responsible adult to provide care.

3. One or both parents'/caregivers' behavior is dangerously impulsive or they will not/cannot control their behavior. This threat is about self-control (e.g. a person's ability to postpone or set aside needs, plan, be dependable, avoid destructive behavior, use good judgment, not act on impulses, exert energy and action or manage emotions. Parent's/ caregiver's lack of self-control places vulnerable children in jeopardy. This threat includes parents/caregivers who are incapacitated or not controlling their behavior because of mental health or substance abuse issues). Poor impulse control or lack of self-control includes behaviors other than aggression and can lead to severe harm to a child. This threat is illustrated in the following examples: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Parent/caregiver is seriously depressed and functionally unable to meet the child's basic needs • Parent/caregiver is chemically dependent and unable to control the dependency's effects. • Substance abuse renders the parent/caregiver incapable of routinely/consistently attending to child's basic needs. • Parent/caregiver makes impulsive decisions and plans that leave the child in precarious situations (e.g. unsupervised, supervised by an unreliable person). 	One or both parents/caregivers has impulsive behavior that they cannot/will not control. This threat is about self-control (e.g. a person's ability to postpone or set aside needs, plan, be dependable, avoid destructive behavior, use good judgment, not act on impulses, exert energy and action or manage emotions. 5. Family does not have or use resources necessary to assure the child's basic needs. "Basic needs" refers to a family's lack of 1) minimal resources to provide shelter, food, and clothing or 2) the capacity to use resources for basic needs, even when available. This threat is illustrated by the following examples. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Family has insufficient money to provide basic and protective care. • Family has insufficient food, clothing, or shelter for basic needs of the child. • Family finances are insufficient to support needs that, if unmet, could result in severe harm to the child. • Parent/caregiver lacks life management skills to properly use resources when they are available. • Family is routinely using their resources for things (e.g. drugs) other than for basic care and support thereby leaving them without their basic needs being adequately met. 	Family does not use known, available, and accessible resources to assure the child's essential needs for food, clothing, and/or shelter are met. This threat only refers to essential needs for food, clothing and/or shelter that if chronically unmet will likely result in serious harm to the child. Note: It may be likely that another Impending Danger Threat is a better fit to describe the current family condition. A family's experience of poverty alone does not indicate the appropriateness of this threat. Child welfare professionals must consider the intersection of poverty and the family's ability to meet the child's essential needs; as well as how potential connections to resources, instead of CPS intervention, may mitigate this threat. As a reminder, local child welfare agencies are still required to maintain Active Efforts and provide culturally appropriate services for Native America families whenever possible. This threat may be illustrated in the following examples. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Parent/caregiver is unwilling or refusing to use resources they are aware of and have access to. • Family is routinely using their resources for things (e.g. drugs) other than for basic care and support thereby leaving them without their basic essential needs being adequately met. • Family has insufficient money to provide basic and protective care.
